

Behavioral and Communication Styles

Continuing Professional Development

Instructor:

George Guirgis, BSc, MBA, PhD

Aim:

The behavioral and communication styles seminar is an essential learning tool to maximize the efficiency of daily communication behaviors and contribute to building positive relationships and a productive work environment. Being able to identify your communication styles and those of your colleagues, customers, even friends and relatives will help getting your message across effectively, while providing you with a better understanding of other people's views and opinions.

Objectives:

This seminar grants you one of the top human relations skills to thrive in any setting.

Discover how to:

- Communicate logically, clearly and concisely.
- Build trust and motivate people to act.
- Form closer, more rewarding relationships.
- Increase confidence and competence in interacting.
